PREFACE

This bibliography presents selected references on current and projected patterns of non-urban land utilization and the effects of these patterns on rural growth, transportation, land values, public lands, forest resources, natural resource conservation and regional planning. While the material cited essentially concerns the United States, foreign English language publications are included if they cover general land utilization problems and possible solutions common to all nations. Material on urban land use patterns is not included.

Land utilization periodical literature for the period January 1965 through May 1968, and books published between 1963 and May 1968 were examined. Calls numbers following the citations are those of the National Agricultural Library. The absence of a call number indicates that the material cited is not in the National Agricultural Library collection.

This bibliography was compiled by Mrs. Betty Baxtresser, Division of Reference.
